

housebeautiful

DECEMBER 2002

Deck
the Halls

Decorating with all the Trimmings

Table Settings
with a Sense of Place

Gifts for the Hard to Please

Entertaining
for the Holidays

$1.95 US/$4.95 Canada/Foreign

12

0 74820 08458 8

Books with Looks

From soups to stone houses, decorative arts to divas, there's something for everyone on your list this holiday season

Entertaining Diversions

• Preston Bailey knows how to throw a party. When the event planner was asked to design the backdrop for Melissa Rivers's wedding, he transformed a chandeliered space into a starlit, snow-covered forest straight out of Dr. Zhivago. For his tips on how to stage your own fabulous fêtes, check out Preston Bailey's Design for Entertaining (Bulfinch, $45). • Score some stylistic points at your holiday get-togethers with Cocktail Parties with a Twist (Stewart, Tabori &

Chang, $30), in which authors Alexandra and Eliot Angle (principals in Los Angeles-based catering and design company Aqua Vitae) serve up cassis cocktails and pork-and-veal pâté instead of eggnog and cheese logs. • To keep frigid winter chills at bay, crack open Lois Anne Rother's The Soups of France (Chronicle, $50) for warm, fortifying concoctions like cabbage and Roquefort soup from Auvergne or fisherman's soup from Breton. • In Jeremiah Tower Cooks (Stewart, Tabori & Chang, $35), the two-time James Beard Award winner and father of California cuisine tackles everything from culinary language—he prefers cream to crème, blue to bleu—to the proper way to serve foie gras (never hot) to recipes ranging from oyster soup with caviar to fried green tomatoes. Printed on extra-thick paper, it will withstand even the messiest of chefs.

(Continued on page 50)

PRESTON BAILEY'S Design for Entertaining